Undercover Diplomat

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Possible answer: Alex probably felt a mix of fear and determination when they first learned about the enemy's dangerous weapon. They might have been scared because the weapon posed a huge threat to the world. At the same time, they were determined to do whatever it took to stop the enemy and protect people from harm.
2. Possible answer: Maintaining my cover as Diplomat David was really challenging. I had to act like someone else all the time, and I had to be careful not to make any mistakes that could reveal my true identity. It was tough to always stay in character and keep up with the diplomatic events and parties. Plus, I had to be on constant lookout for the enemy, which was really stressful.
3. Possible answer: Yes, it was definitely worth the risk for Alex to go undercover. The global crisis that could have happened if they didn't stop the enemy's dangerous weapon would have been devastating. Alex's bravery and sacrifice helped save the world from a terrible disaster, and that makes it worth it.
4. Possible answer: Some qualities that make Alex a hero are bravery, intelligence, and dedication. Alex risked their life to infiltrate the enemy and gather important information. They also used their intelligence to stay one step ahead of the enemy and to escape when they were in danger. Their dedication to their mission and the safety of the world is evident throughout the story. For example, they didn't give up even when facing close calls and danger.
