

Name _____

Nature's Symphony: A Sonnet on Earth's Beauty

Short Answer Key

1. The poem describes the birds in the natural world as singing in harmony with other living things, contributing to the symphony of life that underscores the poem's theme.
2. Rivers are described as sparkling, winding streams that reflect the skies and flow eternally. They hold significance as part of nature's beauty and continuity.
3. Mountains are characterized as a testament to nature's grandeur, highlighting their majestic and awe-inspiring presence. They convey the message of nature's grandeur.
4. The poem suggests that it is crucial to protect and value the natural world because it holds wisdom, beauty, and a message for us. Its preservation is vital for future generations.
5. The poem associates emotions like awe, reverence, and a sense of belonging with nature's beauty.

