Freddie Mercury was born Farrokh Bulsara on September 5, 1946, on the island of Zanzibar, which is now part of Tanzania. When he was young, his family moved to India, where he began taking piano lessons. Freddie loved music and dreamed of becoming a performer. As a teenager, his family moved to England. He went to art school and continued playing music. He admired many famous singers and wanted to create his own unique style.

Queen and Musical Success

In 1970, Freddie Mercury joined a band called Queen with three other musicians: Brian May, Roger Taylor, and John Deacon. He suggested the name Queen for the band, and they quickly became famous.

Freddie helped write many hit songs, such as "Bohemian Rhapsody," "We Will Rock You," and "We Are the Champions." His voice could sing both high and low notes, and his performances were full of energy. He often dressed in bright costumes and ran across the stage, making every concert exciting.
