

Name _____

The Presidential Powerhouse: How the President Exercises Executive Authority

Multiple Choice Questions

1. What is the President's role as Commander-in-Chief primarily responsible for?

- a) Managing the economy
- b) Shaping foreign policy
- c) Leading the military
- d) Representing the United States at international events

2. In the role of Chief Executive, the President is responsible for:

- a) Creating laws
- b) Enforcing laws and overseeing federal agencies
- c) Representing the United States to foreign countries
- d) Making decisions on foreign policy

3. What is the purpose of executive orders issued by the President?

- a) To create new laws
- b) To review existing laws
- c) To manage the operations of the federal government and enforce policies
- d) To amend the Constitution

4. How does the system of checks and balances apply to the President's use of executive authority?

- a) It prevents the President from issuing executive orders.
- b) It allows the President to override congressional laws.
- c) It ensures that the President's actions are in line with the Constitution and can be reviewed by other branches of government.
- d) It gives the President unlimited power to make decisions.

5. In times of crisis, what can the President do to address the situation?

- a) Create new laws
- b) Override congressional decisions
- c) Declare a state of emergency and allocate federal resources
- d) Issue executive orders without any oversight

