Open Ended Questions Answers

1. The story creates a humorous and spooky atmosphere by combining supernatural elements like zombies and vampires with everyday situations like a football game in a small town called Creepsville. The characters, such as the Zombie Cheerleaders groaning and limping during their routines and the Vampire Jocks wearing sunblock and sunglasses at night, add humor to the story. Additionally, the rivalry between the two teams and their pranks on each other heighten the tension and humor in the plot.
2. The rivalry between the Zombie Cheerleaders and Vampire Jocks adds humor and tension to the story by showcasing their contrasting personalities and supernatural abilities. The cheerleaders play pranks like throwing buckets of fake blood, while the jocks retaliate with garlic-scented footballs. These pranks highlight their differences and create a comedic rivalry that culminates in the big game.
3. The story ends with a mysterious event, where the stadium lights go out during the game's final moments, causing both teams to disappear. The author chose to leave this event a mystery to add an element of intrigue and open-endedness to the story, allowing readers to use their imaginations to speculate about the fate of the teams.
4. The residents of Creepsville react to the strange disappearance of both teams with confusion and bewilderment. They are left without a clear winner in the game, and the unexplained event becomes a topic of discussion and speculation in the town.
