Farewell to Furry Friends

In our cozy home, so warm and snug,
Lived a pet, a furry pug.
With eyes so bright, and tail that wagged,
Our bond with him, forever tagged.
His name was Max, a loyal friend,
Through thick and thin, to the very end.
He'd greet us with a joyful bark,
A daily ritual, as bright as a spark.
Max loved to play, run, and chase,
In the park, his happy place.
His fur was soft, a sandy brown,
A loyal companion, all around town.
But time, it moves, as time must do,
And Max grew old, his health askew.
We watched him slow, his steps so weak,
Our hearts grew heavy, tears on our cheek.
As the days grew shorter, the nights grew long,
We knew Max's time with us was gone.
We held him close, in our embrace,
Whispered love, as tears streamed down our face.
One fateful night, beneath the stars so bright,

Name _____

Max closed his eyes, in the soft moonlight.
He left this world, with a sigh so sweet,
Our dear pug, now at rest, no more to greet.
Our home feels empty, our hearts are sore,
For Max, our friend, we'll mourn evermore.
But in our memories, he'll forever reside,
Our beloved pet, with love, we'll never hide.
And so, we say our fond goodbye,
To our furry friend, up in the sky.
In our hearts, he'll always stay,
Forever loved, in our own special way.
