Youth Unite: The Power to Eradicate Global Poverty

Short Answer Key

1. Young people can raise awareness about global poverty by organizing events, sharing information on social media, and engaging in discussions with friends and family.
2. Young people can use their creativity to combat global poverty by inventing new technologies, designing sustainable solutions, and creating educational resources for those in need.
3. Young voices can create a global movement for change by inspiring others to take action, participating in advocacy campaigns, and using their platforms to reach a wider audience.
4. It is important for young people to think outside the box when addressing poverty-related challenges because traditional methods may not always be effective, and innovative solutions can bring about positive change.
5. Examples of innovative solutions young people can come up with include developing clean energy sources, creating microloan programs for entrepreneurs in impoverished areas, and designing low-cost healthcare solutions.
