

Name _____

Letters Across Time: A Found Poem of Historical Voices

Short Answer Key

1. The poem captures the emotions of a soldier at war in the letter that begins with "Dearest love" by conveying a sense of longing, fear, and a deep yearning for the comfort of a loved one. The soldier expresses a strong desire for their beloved's touch and embraces, highlighting the emotional toll of being separated during wartime.
2. A common theme or request found in the letters from a writer, a leader, and a sibling in the poem is the need for connection and support. Each letter represents a different facet of human relationships and highlights the importance of communication and sharing emotions, whether it's seeking inspiration, advocating for justice, or expressing love and support for family members.
3. The author of the letter that begins with "Respected colleague" is a scientist. In their letter, they are sharing discoveries and insights related to their scientific work. The content of the letter likely contains information about their research findings and the progress they have made in their field.
4. The tone of the letter that begins with "Beloved sister" is one of warmth, affection, and closeness. It reflects a strong and loving bond between siblings. The letter emphasizes the family's strength and the enduring connection between the siblings, even when they are physically apart. It conveys a sense of emotional support and affection.
5. The phrase "In the laboratory, I toil and strive" in the poem reflects the dedication of a scientist to their work by emphasizing the hard work and effort they put into their research. The scientist is likely referring to their commitment to conducting experiments, making observations, and making progress in their scientific field. The discoveries they mention could range from breakthroughs in scientific understanding to the development of new technologies or innovations.

