

Name _____

Threads of Time: A Journey Through the History of Clothing and Fashion

Short Answer Key

1. Early humans used animal hides and plant fibers for clothing to protect themselves from the elements.
2. In ancient Egypt, clothing was often made from linen and adorned with intricate embroidery and jewelry. It also served symbolic purposes, such as reflecting social status and religious beliefs.
3. In ancient Greece, clothing styles varied based on gender and status. Women wore elaborate drapery, while men wore chitons and other garments.
4. The three-piece suit was significant during the Enlightenment Era, representing simplicity and rationality. Empire-waisted dresses were iconic during the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, featuring high waistlines and flowing gowns.
5. The Industrial Revolution transformed the fashion industry through mass production, making clothing more accessible to a wider population.

