Where Horses Live: Habitats Around the World

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Horses are often found in grasslands because these areas have plenty of grass to eat and space to run, which suits their needs better than forests.
2. Open fields help horses stay healthy by providing space to run, which keeps their muscles strong, and access to fresh grass for nutrition.
3. Answers will vary but should describe a space with grass, water, and shelter while explaining why these elements are important.
4. It is important for horses to live in herds because they feel safer and can protect each other from danger.
