

Name _____

Deciphering Directions: Why Following Instructions Varies Among Kids

Multiple Choice Questions

1. Why do some kids find it challenging to follow directions?
 - a) They don't want to follow directions.
 - b) They have learning disabilities.
 - c) They have excellent working memory.
 - d) They have quick processing speeds.

2. What is one way to help kids who struggle with distractions when following directions?
 - a) Give them more distractions to overcome.
 - b) Create a calm and distraction-free environment.
 - c) Encourage them to multitask.
 - d) Ask them to ignore distractions.

3. What role does working memory play in following directions?
 - a) It helps kids process information quickly.
 - b) It makes kids naturally good at following directions.
 - c) It assists in remembering multiple steps of directions.
 - d) It doesn't affect following directions.

4. How can learning disabilities impact a child's ability to follow directions?
 - a) Learning disabilities make it easier to follow directions.
 - b) They don't have any impact on following directions.
 - c) Learning disabilities can affect how kids process and remember information.
 - d) Learning disabilities only affect artistic skills.

5. Why might emotional factors make it harder for a child to follow directions?
 - a) Emotions have no effect on following directions.
 - b) Emotional factors can create a calm and focused environment.
 - c) Turbulent emotions can distract from following directions.
 - d) Emotional factors speed up processing speed.

