

Name _____

Hardships of the Industrial Revolution: Working Conditions and Labor Struggles

Multiple Choice Questions

1. During the Industrial Revolution, how many hours a day did many factory workers, including children, typically work?
  - a) 6 to 8 hours a day
  - b) 10 to 12 hours a day
  - c) 14 to 16 hours a day
  - d) 18 to 20 hours a day

2. What was one of the significant dangers that workers faced in factories during this period?
  - a) Lack of ventilation
  - b) Monotonous tasks
  - c) Dangerous machinery
  - d) Excessive heat

3. Why did factory owners pay low wages to workers during the Industrial Revolution?
  - a) To encourage workers to take more breaks
  - b) To maximize profits
  - c) To promote worker well-being
  - d) To attract skilled labor

4. What is one of the lasting consequences of child labor during the Industrial Revolution?
  - a) Increased access to education for all children
  - b) Improved workplace safety for adults
  - c) The emergence of labor unions
  - d) Long-lasting economic prosperity

5. Why were early labor movements significant during the Industrial Revolution?
  - a) They advocated for longer working hours.
  - b) They sought to eliminate child labor entirely.
  - c) They laid the foundation for labor reforms and workers' rights.
  - d) They primarily focused on improving factory machinery.

