Name _____

Breaking Barriers: International Human Rights Laws and Equality

Short Answer

1. Give an example of a vulnerable group that international human rights laws aim to protect from discrimination.

2. What does it mean for international human rights laws to emphasize "equality before the law"?

3. How do international human rights laws encourage education and awareness about equality and non-discrimination?

4. Explain the role of treaty bodies in enforcing international human rights laws.

5. What are affirmative action programs, and why might they be used in the context of international human rights?

© ReadingDuck.com