What Does a Capybara Look Like?

Open Ended Key

1. A capybara's body is suited for water life because it has webbed feet for swimming, fur that dries quickly, and eyes, ears, and a nose on top of its head for seeing and breathing while submerged.
2. Capybaras are often seen as gentle animals because they are calm, friendly, and live peacefully with others, including humans and animals.
3. Living in groups helps capybaras survive by providing safety in numbers and allowing them to warn each other of danger.
4. Answers may vary. Example: "I would find their swimming ability most interesting because it shows how they are adapted to both land and water environments."
