The Great Mascot Madness

Once upon a time in the lively halls of Brookside Middle School, a buzz of excitement filled the air. It was that time of the year again when students were invited to submit their ideas for a new school mascot. The current mascot, a rather ordinary-looking bulldog, had become a bit dull, and the school's principal, Mr. Higgins, decided it was time for a change. He believed that a new mascot would ignite school spirit and bring a fresh burst of enthusiasm to Brookside Middle.

Imaginative Submissions

The call for mascot ideas sent waves of creativity through the student body. As the submissions started pouring in, the staff was astonished by the students' imagination. Among the many suggestions were:

- The Brookside Banana Bandits: A group of mischievous bananas wearing sunglasses and carrying bags of loot. They would represent fun and spontaneity.
- The Brookside Bubblegum Bats: Giant bats with colorful bubblegum bubbles as they soared through the sky. They would symbolize the school's soaring spirit.
- The Brookside Space Sloths: Spacefaring sloths wearing astronaut suits, floating amidst the stars. They would represent the school's ambition and determination.
- The Brookside Gummy Bears: Gummy bears with anthropomorphic features, indulging in school activities. They would signify the sweetness of unity.
- The Brookside Disco Ducks: Ducks with groovy moves and funky outfits, ready to dance the night away. They would represent the joy of togetherness.

The Audition Extravaganza

Mr. Higgins and the school's mascot committee had a difficult task ahead of them. They needed to select the most entertaining and spirited mascot idea from the submissions. To make things even more exciting, they decided to hold auditions for the top five ideas.

Name _____

The auditions took place in the school's gymnasium, which was transformed into a stage fit for a talent show. Each student who submitted an idea was asked to perform a short skit, dance, or song representing their mascot concept.

Banana Bandits Bust a Move

First up were the creators of the Brookside Banana Bandits. Three students dressed as bananas strutted onto the stage, grooving to the beat of a catchy song. They even managed to perform a synchronized dance routine while hilariously trying to steal giant cardboard "loot" under the watchful eyes of imaginary security guards. The audience burst into laughter and applause.

Bubblegum Bats Take Flight

Next, the Brookside Bubblegum Bats soared into action. Two students donned bat wings and blew colorful bubbles that filled the stage. The bubbles floated in the air, creating a mesmerizing display. The bats swirled and danced amidst the bubbles, and the audience was enchanted by the whimsical performance.

Space Sloths Reach for the Stars

The Brookside Space Sloths brought their extraterrestrial charm to the stage. Dressed in astronaut suits, they floated on strings, creating the illusion of space travel. With slow and deliberate movements, they interacted with stars and planets, showcasing the school's spirit of adventure.

Gummy Bears Share the Sweetness

The Brookside Gummy Bears appeared on stage with oversized gummy bear heads and bright, colorful costumes. They engaged in a heartwarming skit where they helped fellow students in need, highlighting the value of unity and kindness. Their sweet message resonated with the audience.

Disco Ducks Dance the Night Away

Lastly, the Brookside Disco Ducks waddled onto the stage, dressed in retro disco outfits. With energetic dance moves, they grooved to classic disco tunes, and their infectious enthusiasm had the audience clapping and tapping their feet.
