

Name _____

A Tribute to Nature's Fury

In the heart of the land, where rivers flow,
Nature's power, we've come to know.
A tragedy struck, a disaster so grand,
Changing the landscape, shaping the land.
Mountains trembled, the earth did quake,
As if nature itself was wide awake.
A volcano erupted, with fiery might,
Spewing ash and lava in the dead of night.
The sky turned dark, with ashes in the air,
A scene of chaos, beyond compare.
Homes were lost, forests set ablaze,
In the midst of this fiery haze.
Yet amidst the destruction and despair,
Heroes emerged, with hearts so rare.
They fought the flames, they saved the day,
In the face of nature's wild display.
For the land may change, the scars remain,
But from tragedy, we rise again.
In unity and strength, we find our way,
As we honor nature, come what may.

