

Name _____

Newcomers Arrive

Open-Ended Answer Key

1. If settlers had respected Native American lands, there might have been less conflict and more opportunities for peaceful cooperation and mutual benefit.
2. Different tribes had unique cultures, traditions, and experiences that shaped their views. Some might have seen settlers as an opportunity for trade, while others felt threatened by their actions.
3. We can learn the importance of respecting different cultures, listening to others' perspectives, and finding peaceful solutions to conflicts.
4. It shows the diversity and resilience of Native American tribes and helps us recognize their contributions and challenges during a significant period of history.

