Overworked Colors

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Answers will vary, but should include a crayon's unique perspective and a suggestion for how Duncan could use it more.
2. Answers should relate the crayons' complaints to real-life situations, such as people feeling overworked or left out in school or at work.
3. Answers should explain the importance of making sure everyone feels appreciated, whether in a group project, a family, or a community.
4. Answers should discuss how thinking outside the box—like Duncan using colors differently—can help solve problems creatively in life.
