Baseball Positions and Player Roles: The Building Blocks of the Game

Short Answer Key

1. A third baseman is responsible for guarding third base, fielding ground balls, and making throws to first or second base when necessary.
2. The catcher is essential because they handle pitches from the pitcher, control the game's tempo, and play a crucial role in preventing stolen bases.
3. The primary role of a leadoff hitter is to set the tone for the team by getting on base, often through a base hit or a walk.
4. A power hitter is known for their ability to hit home runs and drive in runs, providing a significant offensive boost to the team.
5. A closer is typically called upon in the late innings of a game, especially when the team has a lead, and their main task is to secure the win by preventing the opposing team from scoring.
