

Name _____

The Haunting of Ravenwood Manor

Short Answer Key

1. Ravenwood Manor is described as gloomy, desolate, and veiled in mystery and sorrow. The mansion has a foreboding appearance, with a towering façade and dark, empty windows.
2. Eleanor encounters a ghostly figure, a lady in a tattered gown, who tells her about a tragic love story and the curse that haunts the manor. The apparition speaks of a forbidden romance and the need for redemption.
3. Eleanor uncovers letters, diaries, and faded photographs that chronicle the family's descent into darkness and the forbidden love that tore them apart. These revelations are intertwined with the curse's origin and its tragic consequences.
4. Eleanor breaks the curse by carrying out a selfless act of love, which is the final requirement revealed in a tattered journal in the attic. This act grants peace to the tormented souls and vanquishes the mansion's malevolent presence.
5. Eleanor likely experiences a mix of emotions, including sadness and relief. She has uncovered the secrets and redeemed the tormented souls of the manor, but she also carries the weight of the past and the haunting memories of her journey.

