

Name _____

Do Llamas Form Relationships with Other Species?

Multiple Choice Questions

1. What is an example of mutualism involving llamas?
 - a. Llamas eating birds' food
 - b. Llamas being bitten by ticks
 - c. Llamas guarding sheep from predators
 - d. Llamas running from other animals

2. How do birds benefit from being around llamas?
 - a. They get a place to build nests
 - b. They eat insects stirred up by llamas
 - c. They use llamas' wool for nests
 - d. They scare away predators

3. Which of the following is a parasitic relationship?
 - a. Llamas protecting livestock
 - b. Birds eating insects near llamas
 - c. Ticks feeding on llamas' blood
 - d. Llamas sharing food with goats

4. What does commensalism mean?
 - a. One animal benefits, and the other is unaffected
 - b. Both animals help each other
 - c. Both animals are harmed
 - d. Only one animal benefits

5. Why do llamas make good guard animals?
 - a. They are very loud
 - b. They eat more than other animals
 - c. They run away quickly
 - d. They protect smaller animals from predators

