Remembering Matters

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Answers will vary. Some students may say it is better because people would not feel pain, while others may argue that pain is necessary for learning and growth.
2. Memories help people learn from past mistakes. For example, remembering war can help people avoid future conflicts.
3. Answers will vary. Some may say yes because it would make life more meaningful, while others may say no because it could bring suffering.
4. Forgetting history can make people repeat mistakes. If people do not remember past hardships, they might not work to prevent them in the future.
