

Name _____

Exploring Shapes: The Magic of Similarity

Short Answer

1. Explain what similarity means in geometry.
2. How does similarity help architects?
3. What must remain constant for two shapes to be considered similar?
4. Give an example of how similarity is used in everyday life.
5. Why is it possible to scale up or down a drawing without changing its basic structure?

