Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Jenny's experience in the entertainment industry changed her as a person by making her lose her true self and forcing her to prioritize appearance and fame over her genuine personality.
2. Jenny decided to prioritize her small-town roots and family over fame because she realized that fame was not worth sacrificing her true self and the love of her family.
3. Jenny learned the lesson that staying true to oneself and cherishing the love and support of family is more important than pursuing fame at any cost.
4. Answers may vary, but some might choose fame for the excitement and opportunities it offers, while others might prefer a simpler life in their hometown for the comfort and authenticity it provides.
