

Name _____

Starting a New Life

Short Answer Key

1. Immigrants struggled with overcrowded housing and high rent.
2. Jobs were difficult to find because many immigrants did not speak English and employers sometimes preferred hiring native-born workers.
3. Children learned English faster in school and helped their families translate and find work.
4. Some immigrants were not hired for jobs, while others faced discrimination because of their background.
5. Immigrants worked hard, saved money, and educated their children, allowing future generations to have better opportunities.

