

Name _____

Summer's Freedom

Short Answer Key

1. The ringing of "School's final bell" signifies the end of the school day and the beginning of summer vacation.
2. The sense of freedom is found "In empty halls," suggesting that the absence of students and teachers contributes to the feeling of freedom.
3. "Summer's promise" in the Haiku likely refers to the exciting experiences and opportunities that summer vacation offers, such as adventures, relaxation, and leisure.
4. The Haiku conveys the feeling of anticipation through the imagery of the final bell ringing, signaling the start of something eagerly awaited.
5. Students might feel excited, relieved, and happy when they hear the final bell and experience the freedom of summer vacation.

