Tears of Goodbye

In the garden of our love, once blooming bright,
Now lies a wilted rose, fading out of sight,
The days we shared, the laughter, the song,
Have all dissolved into a love that's gone wrong.
Your smile, once my sunshine, now a distant dream,
In the shadow of heartbreak, it no longer gleams,
The whispers of promises, the tender embrace,
Now replaced by silence, an empty space.
We danced through the rain, hand in hand,
But now I stand alone in this desolate land,
Our love, like a fire, now reduced to ember,
Leaving behind a heart I'll always remember.
The tears of goodbye, like raindrops, fall,
As I watch our love crumble, hit the wall,
The pain in my chest, the ache in my soul,
In this story of heartbreak, I've paid the toll.
But in time, I'll mend, I'll find my way,
Through the darkness of night, into a new day,
Though our love is lost, I'll still survive,
With strength and resilience, I'll learn to thrive.
