Tech Obsession: The Screens We Can't Put Down

Short Answer Key

1. The poem describes the addictive nature of screens and technology by mentioning how we are hooked, glued to our devices, and constantly seeking likes and comments.
2. The poet hopes for a future where people find a balance with technology, prioritize real-life connections, and cherish the Earth.
3. The poem suggests that technology can distract us from being fully present in the real world because we are constantly focused on our screens.
4. Answers may vary, but students can provide personal examples of feeling addicted to their devices, such as spending hours on social media or gaming without realizing it.
5. The line "Let's cherish the Earth" emphasizes the importance of valuing and experiencing the physical world outside of screens, nature, and the environment.
