How Tigers Talk: Communication in the Wild

Short Answer Key

1. Tigers use sounds like roars, growls, snarls, hisses, and chuffs to communicate.
2. Tigers show anger or fear by flattening their ears, crouching, or lashing their tails.
3. Tigers spray urine to mark their territory and share information about themselves.
4. Play helps tiger cubs practice gestures and behaviors they will use as adults.
5. A tiger's roar is so powerful that it can travel up to two miles through the forest.
