Time and Power

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. Some might argue that Eckels is responsible because he broke the rules, while others may say he didn't mean to change anything.
2. Students might choose events like historical battles, famous speeches, or personal family history and discuss whether they would change anything.
3. Responses could explore how leaders make choices that shape history and how people must be careful when choosing their leaders.
4. Students should reflect on how small decisions in their own lives can have unexpected effects on their future.
