Twisted Truths

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

(Responses may vary; here are examples of thoughtful answers.)

1. The narrator might be imagining things because guilt can affect how people see reality.
2. Guilt makes the narrator act strangely, like seeing things that may not be real.
3. He may not want to admit that he is responsible, so he blames the cat instead.
4. "Think about your love for Pluto! Hurting him will only make you feel worse later."
