Sky Heroes: A Daring Rescue Mission

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. (Answers may vary) Captain Sarah likely felt a mix of anxiety and determination when she received the urgent call, knowing the mission was in enemy territory. She may have been anxious about the danger but determined to save the stranded crew.
2. Captain Sarah used a smoke screen to create confusion and obstruct the enemy's view, making it difficult for them to target her jet. This allowed her to evade the pursuing enemy planes successfully.
3. The rescued crew members likely felt immense relief and gratitude when they were finally safe and back on their home base. They would have been thankful to Captain Sarah for their rescue and relieved to be out of enemy territory.
4. Bravery is an important quality for an Air Force pilot like Captain Sarah because they often face dangerous and life-threatening situations during missions. Being brave allows them to stay focused, make critical decisions, and carry out rescue missions like the one in this story.
