

Name _____

United We Stand: The Journey of Basic Training

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. (Answers may vary) The diverse backgrounds and skills of the recruits contributed to their success during basic training by providing a range of perspectives and strengths. They learned to leverage each other's abilities and support one another, making them a stronger and more adaptable team.
2. The recruits' friendships and teamwork evolved as they faced challenges together and learned to rely on each other. They became closer and more supportive, understanding the importance of unity and trust.
3. Carlos and Malik's interaction during the navigation exercises was a touching moment of camaraderie because it showed how one recruit, Carlos, selflessly helped another, Malik, overcome a challenge. It demonstrated the spirit of teamwork and support that had developed among the recruits.
4. The skills and lessons learned during basic training, such as discipline, teamwork, and adaptability, can benefit the recruits in their future military careers by making them better-equipped for the challenges they may face. These skills are valuable for effective military service.

