The Great Military Cook-Off

Short Answer Key

1. The three rounds of the cook-off competition were the appetizer round, the main course round, and the dessert round.
2. The Navy, represented by Petty Officer Smith, won the appetizer round with crab cakes.
3. Airman Davis prepared barbecue ribs for the main course round, and they won because they were tender and packed with flavor.
4. There was no overall winner in the cook-off competition because each branch of the military won one of the rounds, creating a tie.
5. The unexpected outcome of the competition was that no single branch won the overall competition. It taught the participants that despite their differences, they were all part of a larger military family, and the true winners were the bonds of friendship and unity.
