

Name _____

School Days: Lessons We Need to Learn

Short Answer Key

1. The poet questions whether the traditional education system is the best way to achieve true learning.
2. The poem suggests that the education system should change by fostering empathy, compassion, art, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills, as well as by allowing space for individual passions and creativity.
3. The poem mentions critical thinking and problem-solving skills because they are considered essential skills that should be nurtured in the education system.
4. The poem emphasizes the importance of nurturing individuality by highlighting that every child is unique and has their own talents and dreams.
5. The poet hopes for a future where changes are made in the education system to prioritize holistic learning and individual growth.

