How Do Wolves Reproduce?

Short Answer Key

1. The alpha pair leads the pack and is usually the only pair to mate to manage pack size and resources.
2. The pack helps by bringing food to the mother, guarding the den, and teaching the pups survival skills.
3. Dens provide a safe, warm, and hidden place for female wolves to give birth and care for their pups.
4. As they grow older, wolf pups explore their surroundings, play, and learn essential skills like hunting and communication.
5. Teamwork ensures the pups are fed, protected, and taught the skills they need to survive.
