The Life Cycle of a Wolf

Open-Ended Response Answer Key

1. The pack helps raise wolf pups by bringing food to the mother, guarding the den, and teaching the pups how to hunt and communicate.
2. Play is important for young wolves because it helps them build strength, learn teamwork, and practice hunting techniques.
3. A wolf that leaves its birth pack might face challenges like finding food, avoiding predators, or forming a new pack.
4. Teamwork ensures wolves can hunt large prey, protect their territory, and raise young successfully, making it essential for their survival.
