Zombie Prom Date

It was a night like no other at Millwood High School when the annual prom was just around the corner. Excitement filled the air as students prepared for the most anticipated event of the school year. But for Mark, an ordinary teenager with an extraordinary problem, prom posed a unique challenge.

Mark was not your typical high school student. He was a zombie, not the usual kind that you see in horror movies, but a rather well-mannered and somewhat clumsy zombie. He had pale skin, a few patches of missing flesh, and a tendency to lose body parts at inconvenient times. Despite his peculiar condition, Mark was determined to attend the prom.

With the help of his best friend, Sarah, Mark set out to find a way to attend the prom without causing a panic. After all, he didn't want to be mistaken for a zombie invasion. Sarah, being a brilliant scientist in the making, came up with an ingenious plan. She created a lifelike silicone mask that would make Mark look like a regular, albeit slightly pale, teenager.

The night of the prom arrived, and Mark donned the silicone mask, covering his zombie appearance completely. As he entered the venue, he couldn't help but feel a rush of excitement mixed with nervousness. Nobody suspected a thing as Mark danced, socialized, and even enjoyed a slice of pizza.

However, as the night went on, Mark's clumsy nature began to get the best of him. He accidentally knocked over a punch bowl, sending red liquid splattering everywhere. People started to notice the strange, pale, and slightly sticky liquid seeping from Mark's mask. Panic began to spread, and some students even screamed, thinking Mark was a zombie in disguise.

Sarah rushed to Mark's side, desperately trying to explain the situation. She pulled off his mask, revealing his true zombie appearance. But instead of screams, the students burst into laughter. They realized that Mark was just trying to have a normal high school experience like everyone else.

In the end, Mark's unusual prom adventure became the highlight of the night. Students danced with him, took selfies, and even crowned him the "Prom King of the Undead." It was a prom night filled with laughter, acceptance, and a lesson that being different could be a lot of fun.
