The Day the Vegetables Rebelled

Open Ended Questions Answers

1. Answers may vary. Possible response: It might not have been fair for the vegetables to rebel, but they could have found another way to be appreciated. They could have talked to the townspeople and asked for more recognition and gratitude without causing a rebellion.
2. Answers may vary. Possible response: If I were a vegetable in Veggieville, I would suggest that we have a "Vegetable Parade" where people could admire us and learn about our nutritional value without eating us.
3. Answers may vary. Possible response: The townspeople might have celebrated Veggie Appreciation Day by decorating the town with vegetable-themed decorations, having a vegetable-themed parade, and playing games related to vegetables, like a potato sack race or a carrot toss.
4. Answers may vary. Possible response: The mayor of Veggieville may have decided to listen to the vegetables' concerns instead of ignoring them because it's important to address the feelings and concerns of all residents, even vegetables. It's a sign of good leadership to listen and find solutions to problems.
